MULE THIEVES .- Two unknown men stole two fine mules from the premises of Mr. L. M. Ott, near Branchville, on Sunday night, and made their way to the coast. A pursuit was organized and their capture probable, though Mr. Ott offers a reward of $50 for their recovery, and gives a description of the mules in our advertising columns.

M., mass and instructions by the Rev. Father Garesche. 7:45 P. M. Rosary, sermon by the Rev. Father Garesche and bene-

We learn that Father Garesche, expects to deliver some doctrinal sermons next week in addition to the lecture at the Hibernian Hall on June 8.

NEW MINING COMPANY.—Last week 'a number of gentlemen concluded to organize a mining and manufacturing company, secured lands within seven miles of the city, and on yesterday, with a capital of $70,000, organized under the name of the Chicora Mining and Manufacturing Company. The following named gentlemen were elected directors: A. D. Estill, (president;) John H. Holmes, J. S. Murdock, Rudolph Siegling and T. A. Jeffords; T. A. Witsell, secretary. The spirit of enterprise thus evinced is a sufficient guarantee that the work of this company will be energetically and successfully pushed forward.

THE CONCERT.—The Hibernian Hall was thronged last night, to hear the concert given by Mr. Kemmerer's class of nearly two hundred young singers. The stage was almost uncomfortably crowded with the little ones, but their bright faces betokened that the occasion was one of as much enjoyment to them as those who came to hear them, The entertainment consisted of miscellaneous music, and the rendering of the pieces showed that the singers had been well drilled by their teacher. In some of the pieces sung by the entire class, there was, as was to be expected, a little discord; but, altogether, the concert was a success, and the parents of the children have reason to be gratified at the proficiency displayed.

Mr. Kemmerer will give another entertainment to-merrow night.

THE COMING CENSUS .- The census of 1870 will commence to-morrow, and by the first of November the enumeration, not only of persons but of industries and social statistics, will be complete in the office of the department at Washington. In the slow process of government we will then know, when a year or eighteen months is passed, how great the nation has grown within the past ten years. The machinery of the census is very extensive, requiring a personal visit of an "assistant marshal" to each dwelling house and every family, every farm, mill, shop and mine, and the individual interrogation of millions, each of whom probably thinks it a bore, but over whose head a fine of thirty dollars hangs in case of matter of two cents a head to the man with the book and pencil, and he has taken an oath to get those two cents and not to speculate for more, by putting down names which have no existence or local habitation. Since the last census, a terrible war has devastated our country, and a careless and incompetent Congress has afforded little help toward the recovering of our prosperity; but it is thought that this, the ninth census, will nevertheless show that, as a nation, we have grown faster in wealth, industry and population, than in any preceding decade of our history, while the development of our mineral resources and means of communication are estimated to be equal to the growth of any twenty previous years.

"THE UNION DEAD."

Decoration of their Graves of General Gurney, Major Corbin and

In pursuance of instructions from Headquarters Grand Army of the Republic, to devote the 30th of May to decoraling the graves, and doing honor to the memory of the soldiers of the Union army who fell during the struggle, the graves of those buried in Magnolia Cemetery were decorated yesterday afternoon, after solemn ceremonies, under the auspices of Shaw Post, No. 1, Grand Army of the Re-

THE ARRIVAL. Shortly before 3 o'clock a special train of the South Carolina Railroad, on which were the members of Shaw Post and their friends, left the Ann street depot for Magnolia. Arriving opposite the Cemetery the Post disembarked, and, headed by the Chicora Cornet Band, marched into the ground, where they dispersed to await the hour of 4 o'clock-the time for commencing the ceremonies. Shortly after their arrival, the first battalion of Charleston light-infantry, (colored) headed to a drum corps, and followed by a large crowd of colored persons, marched to the front of the stand-having marched out from the city. The stand, situated near the chapel, was entirely covered with flags of the United States. On it were a number of ladies, General Gurney, Major Corbin, and several of the white and colored officials of the city. Around it was a crowd of about twenty-five hundred persons, three-fourths of whom were colored. At 4 o'clock the members of the Shaw Post, with drooping banners and with the band playing a dirge, proceeded slowly to the front of the stand, being saluted by the infantry as they passed.

So soon as the Shaw Post was in position, Captain Reed called the assemblage to order, and after a brief address, in which he stated the object for which they had been called together, and mentioned that the Grand Army of the Republic had not been instituted to revive the bitterness of the past nor to humiliate a fallen foe, but to keep fresh the memories of the glorious deeds of the late war, and to do honor to the Union dead, read the order (above referred to) from General Logan, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Captain Reed then introduced Rev. Dr. Webster, who fervently prayed that the country for which those whose graves they had come to decorate had died to save, would be perpetuated, and its citizens be blessed with increased bappiness and prosperity.

ADDRESS OF MAJOR CORBIN. After the prayer, Captain Reed introduced Major D. T. Corbin, United States District Attorney. Major Corbin, after speaking of the object for which they had assembled, and paying a tribute to those of the Union soldiers who had fallen, defined that a government was constructed for the good of the many, and that the good of the individual should be overlooked when brought into contact. He then briefly alluded to the various governments which had risen, flourished awhile and gone to decay. And, said he, when the Government of the United States was formed, its framers sought to combine all of the good, and reject the bad which had existed in the governments that had gone to decay. The result was a government such as never existed before-one of which every citizen was proud, and boasted of its institutions. While all were congratulating themselves upon having such a glorious country, and upon being on the high road to prosperity, they were ovetaken by a storm-a storm of passion, which raged for four long years, during which blood flowed like water, reason was destroyed, and man, beast-like, sought his brother man but to destroy. Now the storm is over. The Union which was torn and rent is restored, and reason has resumed her throne. The speaker, after speaking at some length of the interest felt by fore gn nations in the struggle, and their surprise that a nation could ecover from a shock which would have overthrown them, alluded again to the Union soldiers, their bravery, endurance and victories, and said that, while it behooved the soldiers of the United States not to forget these deeds and victories, yet it did not become them to say or do anything that would wound or huniliate those with whom they contested; their terrible failure was punishment enough; but they must cultivate a fraternal feeling, and ere long all would be united to preserve the

Union. GENERAL GURNEY'S ADDRESS. General Wm. Gurney was next introduced by Captain Reed. The general paid a tribute to the Union soldiers, whom he claimed had dled that right might triumph over injustice, and that freedom might be given to those who had been kept in bondage. The war had been one of Titans, and great was the struggle. Those who had fought against us, said he, tought tor an "effete idea," upon which the world had set the seal of condemnation, but they fought with a zeal, devotion and bravery which were worthy of a better cause. It is not in the order of things that the bitterness any squeamishness about answering. It is a and antipathles ergendered by the war should cease to exist at once, but every day these feelings are softened, and, in a short time, the Northerner and Southerner will be moving hand in hand in the great work of restoring the country to its former glor. After speaking of the necessity of cultivating such feelings, and stating that all could well afford to await until these asperities were softened, the speaker retired. ADDRESS OF W. J. WHIPPER. W. J. Whipper, colored, representative from Beaufort County, then delivered a short address, at first following in the same strain as his predecessors, paying a tribute to the dead. He then proceeded to speak of those who had fought and lost, saying that while he consigned to infamy the cause for which they fought, yet he could not forget their zeal and bravery for two different ideas. One for liberty, which was brought over in the ship which landed its living freight on Plymouth Rock; the other for the maintenance of an oppression which was brought to this country in a low black schooner which sailed up the James River in 1620. The oppression for which the Southerners fought had gotten into the church, into the Sunday-schools, into Congress; had attempted to control the entire land, and had throttled free speech. Not until it could be borne no longer, was the dread arbitrament of the sword resorted to, which resulted in op. pression being overthrown and a Union, in which all could think and act alike, was restored. After admonishing the soldiers present that they must not hesitate, if ever the necessity arose, to fight and die for their country, as did those whose graves surrounded them, the speaker sat down.

After the reading, by Rev. Dr. Webster, of a poetical tribute to the dead, Captain Reed announced that the decurations of the graves would take place. The assemblage then proceeded to lay upon the graves the flowers and wreaths which they had brought with them. In a short while each mound was covered by these tributes of affection, and those present slowly dispersed.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA CENTRAL FAILROAD COMPANY .- Subscriptions to the capital stock of this company are now in course of collection. The road is to be forty miles long, from the Northeastern Railroad to Sumter. It passes through a country which has comparatively no railroad facilities, and saves thirty-six miles in the trip from Sumter to Charleston. The road is staunchly supported by the Northeastern Railroad Company, and should be backed up by the merchants of this city, to whom the accompanying circular will convey some pleasing information: SUMTER, S. C., May 10. We, the undersigned, merchants of the Town of Sumter, S. C., desiring to remove the impression entertained by the commerci interests of Charleston, that we do not wish to renew business relations with them, take occa-sion to submit the following facts: That the Wilmington and Manchester Railroad is the Wilmington and Manchester Rainton is the only railroad company in direct communication with the Town of Sumter; that the schedule and tariffs of this road are used in the interest of other cities, and are directly against those of Charleston, making it impossible to ship produce either to, or via Charleston, at equal or less rates, but rather at greatly increased cost of transportation and delay.

creased cost of transportation and delay.

We are called upon to protect ourselves accordingly, and do regret the necessity which deprives us of renewing old and well-established relations with the merchants of Charleston. That in common with the commercial interest of the protect of the pr terest of our State, we were necessitated to make business relations outside of South Car-olina, where capital was more abundant and cheaper than at home. That there is now less cheaper than at home that the state of the home necessity to require or obtain credits abroad for ordinary business purposes, and we are now able to elect the most favorable points and offers of reciprocal business relations.

As evidence of our earnes: desire to renew our commercial interests with the merchants of Charleston, we would state that nearly all of us are natives of South Carolina, many of us former residents of the City of Charleston feeling a common interest with you in the wel-fare and prosperity of your city; that we have generally subscribed, to the extent of our means, to aid in the building of the South Caro-lina Central Rallroad, and in this enterprise, of futual advantage, we expect the merchants finutual advantage, we expect the merchants of Charleston to reciprocate, and otherwise co-operate with us, to secure its early completion and successful operation.

THE POPULAR TONIC OF THE AGE .- The day has gone by when a medicine without merit could command and retain the confidence of the world. Advertising induces the public to try many things, but in this shrewd and thoughtful age, words will not suffice without proofs, and it is by the exercise of their private judgment, men determine the relative value of the various articles recommended to their notice through the business columns of newspapers. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS has now been subjected to this searching ordeal for more than eighteen years, and the result is that it stands at the head of the class of remedies to which it belongs. It has distanced and lived down innumerable competitors, and is to-day the Standard Vegetable Tonic of the Western world. The happy effects which have followed its use in cases of dyspepsia, billousness, nervous affections, intermittent fevers and general debility, and as a constitutional invigorant, have entitled it to universal confidence. Nothing can ever shake its reputation, for it is based on the individual experiences of tens of thousands of witnesses, embracing prominent and well known citizens of every profession, occupation and class. There is not a city. town or settlement in the United States where it is not a medicinal staple. No druggist or general dealer would consider his stock complete without it, and the returns of the internal revenue department show that its sales exceed those of any other proprietary restoratives manufactured on this side of the Atlantic. The beneficial results derived during a long series of years from the use of Hostetter's Bitters, have convinced the whole community that the only true way to restore to health a broken down or debilitated system, or to put the human body on its defence when ex posed to unwholesome influences, is to invigorate, regulate and purify it at one and the same time. may27-6D&C
